

LOCAL NEWS PARTNERSHIPS

The BBC's Local News Partnership [LNP] supports established news providers who can demonstrate an ongoing commitment to the production of public interest journalism for local or regional audiences, irrespective of size or means of distribution.

The project has defined two types of partner – Section One and Section Two

- Section One partner: Receives free content generated through the News Hub, Shared Data Unit and Local Democracy Reporting Service
- Section Two partner: Receives free content generated through the News Hub, Shared Data Unit and Local Democracy Reporting Service and employs one or more Local Democracy Reporters

More than 600 print, online and broadcast news providers - representing more than 50 operating companies - are currently approved as Section One partners.

Full details on how to apply to become a Section One partner and, if applicable, Section Two partner are available here.
