

Design a Viking longship figurehead

At the curved front end of a Viking longship was a carved wooden figurehead. Figureheads on ships were meant to scare enemies and were often shaped like dragons or snakes. Have a go at designing your own.

You will need

- Paper
- Card
- Pencil
- Coloured pens or paint
- Scissors

Instructions

1. First you need to design your Viking ship head. Take a piece of paper and roughly sketch out the figurehead. Make sure it's scary enough to frighten people!
2. Now draw it onto card and cut it out. You could draw the whole boat or just the figurehead.
3. Colour it in with paints or coloured pens.
