

Welcome back everybody. I'm going to share four phrasal verbs for talking about dating and relationships today.

To fall for means 'to fall in love with somebody', for example:

Ben and Sarah fell for each other the moment that they met.

To go out means 'to date', for example:

The couple have been going out for four months now.

To make up means 'to forgive each other after an argument', for example:

The couple had the worst argument they had ever had but now they've made up.

Break up means 'to end a relationship', for example:

The couple broke up after five years of dating.

Join us again next week for more English In A Minute.

Bye, everyone.