

As ... as comparatives

This is not a word-for-word transcript

Roy

Hi! I'm Roy, and today I'm going all about making comparatives using the words as and as.

Look at this sentence: James is as tall as me. That means James and I are the same height. We use as with an adjective and another as to say that something is 'the same or equal'.

You can also use the words much or many between the two as's.
I have as many video games as James.

If you want to say that something is not the same or not equal, you can use the word not. We put the word not in front of the first as.

The film is not as good as the book.

This means I think the book is better than the film.
Anyway, I've got to go, but I hope you're as happy as I am.

Bye
