A lost story by one of Britain's best loved children's authors, Beatrix Potter, is to be published for the first time – more than a hundred years after it was written.

The Tale of Kitty-in-Boots, a black cat that leads a double life, was discovered in an exercise book in the writer's archive at the Victoria and Albert museum in London.

Written in 1914, it includes some of her best-loved animal characters – Peter Rabbit and the hedgehog, Mrs.Tiggy-winkle.

Vocabulary

published
made officially available for everyone to read, for example in a book or newspaper double life separate life that other people don't know about archive collection of historical documents, books or objects

Choose the correct summary of this story

a) British author, Beatrix Potter has written a new children's book.
b) A children's book, written by Beatrix Potter a hundred years ago, has been found.
c) A Peter Rabbit book, written by Beatrix Potter a hundred years ago, has been found.
Answer

b) A children's book, written by Beatrix Potter a hundred years ago, has been found.

To hear this bulletin, visit bbc.co.uk/learningenglish/english/features/news-report