
BBC LEARNING ENGLISH

News Review

A plan to bring live music back

The Story

The man behind Wireless and Reading and Leeds has told Newsbeat he's got a plan to get festivals back to full capacity next year.

Melvin Benn says customers could get regularly tested before an event to prove they haven't got coronavirus. "I know that I can deliver that because of the incentive that's at the end of that test i.e. to go and watch a concert or a football match or go to a festival."

There's a lot of organisation but it's really really doable. But for his plan to go ahead government guidelines would have to change as most people can only get an NHS test if they are already showing symptoms.

Vocabulary

getting going

starting something often after a delay

- We need to get going after lunch.
- Sporting events hope to get going by next year.

unveils

introduces something for the first time

- The artist unveiled his new painting.
- The new boss unveiled her plans for the company.

drafts

creates the first version of something

- The president drafted his new plans for the country
- I sent my first draft of my essay to my teacher today.