Look at each of the changes pictured below. Fill in the blanks to say whether the changes are reversible or irreversible. For the reversible changes, draw in a second arrow below the first and pointing in the opposite direction.

Baking a cake is a ..................................... change.

Melting chocolate is a ..................................... change.

A nail rusting is a ..................................... change.

Toasting bread is a ..................................... change.