

Understand how the world really works, with these two daily programmes from BBC World Service:

WORLD Business REPORT

World Business Report explains the trends and issues behind the day's headlines, with one ten minute edition and six 20 minute editions every weekday. The programmes include:

- Clear analysis from the BBC global correspondent network
- Its genuine global reach with millions of daily listeners means we have access to key players in the global economy
- Daily share market reports from London and Wall Street

Business Daily

This 20 minute programme looks at issues in depth, including:

- A weekly comment piece on the ups and downs of life in the office from Lucy Kellaway of the Financial Times
- A weekly technology commentary from Jeremy Wagstaff
- Extended reports from locations across the globe
- Commentaries from the world's leading economists
- Listener feedback via world.business@bbc.co.uk

All our business output looks at business news in the broadest sense and how it affects our daily lives, including:

- The latest on the influence of the global media barons, and how the big takeover deals will affect investors, employees and consumers
- The inside story of the battles between the giant corporations and the government regulators
- Conflicts between growth and environment with all sides of the debate on controversial innovations like genetically modified food

The BBC World Service reaches the biggest global audience of any radio station. Listeners can tune in on FM in 150 capital cities around the world. We are also available on analogue shortwave in Asia and Africa, on the internet and – in Europe - on new digital short wave radio sets.

40 million people listen to BBC World Service every week. Individual country weekly listening figures are: United States 6.0 million, Nigeria 5.9 million, Ghana 3.3 million, India 2.1 million, Kenya 1.8 million, Malawi 1.7 million, Uganda 1.7 million, Bangladesh 1.7 million, UK 1.4 million and Australia 1.1 million.
