GILL

Ms Denton, I'm Gill Biggeloe, Legal Counsel to AC-12.

LINDSAY

I imagine they keep you very busy.

GILL

(Beat. Unsure how to react)
Have a seat. You know
Superintendent Hastings.

LINDSAY

I do.

Lindsay calmly takes her seat facing Hastings. Gill sits tensely in her "conciliatory" position. Hastings bears the look of a man about to undergo root-canal work.

GILL

As part of a new initiative christened Truth and Reconciliation, following a miscarriage of justice parties are invited to engage in dialogue to initiate the healing process.

LINDSAY

There seems to be an oversight. Some of the officers involved in my wrongful conviction are missing.

GILL

Superintendent Hastings, as Senior Investigating Officer, represents the whole team.

LINDSAY

Well. I want them here. Or this new box you need to tick just... won't get ticked.

Lindsay regards Gill and Hastings coolly. Gill looks embarrassed. Hastings snaps and stands.

HASTINGS

God, give me strength.

Exit Hastings. Lindsay looks coolly at Gill.

CUT TO:

10:03:41 INT. AC-12. MEETING ROOM. MOMENTS LATER.

Steve and Kate troop in behind Hastings. They sit tensely facing Lindsay, with Gill still off to the side.

LINDSAY

Thank you. It wouldn't have been the same without you.

Steve and Kate look daggers at Lindsay, in response to this first "victory" by her.

GILL

Ms Denton, on behalf of this department and this constabulary, I offer you a sincere and unconditional apology for your wrongful conviction in respect of the offence of conspiracy to murder.

Gill looks to Hastings.

He hesitates.

Ted.

HASTINGS

(Through gritted teeth)
As the senior investigating officer, I acknowledge your feelings regarding your conviction.

LINDSAY

Wrongful conviction. And you haven't actually said sorry.

Hastings looks like he needs to go somewhere and puke.

Lindsay turns her gaze full on Steve.

LINDSAY (CONT'D)

Maybe you'll do better, DS Arnott.

Lindsay's continued glare at Steve doesn't result in an apology from him. After a long beat.

LINDSAY (CONT'D)

You require me to sign off that I accept your apology. I won't unless it comes from the officers who wronged me.

KATE

You're out. What more do you want?

LINDSAY

An. Apology.

KATE

Jesus Christ.

LINDSAY

(To Gill)

This isn't going very well at all is it?

Excruciatingly tense beats.

GILL

Ted.

HASTINGS

As Senior Investigating Officer, I apologise for your conviction.

LINDSAY

You omitted "wrongful".

Kate gazes at her with disgust.

LINDSAY (CONT'D)

But thank you, that's very gracious.

Lindsay turns her gaze from Hastings to Steve.

LINDSAY (CONT'D)

DS Arnott. We're all waiting.

STEVE

Your allegation that I planted incriminating evidence against you is false.

LINDSAY

Point of information. I've made two allegations -- one, you engaged in inappropriate sexual relations whilst on an undercover operation and, two, you planted fifty thousand pounds to simulate a bribe.

STEVE

And it's all crap.

HASTINGS

(Calming.)

Steve.

LINDSAY

Really? Do tell.

STEVE

(To Gill)

Lindsay Denton knows our procedures inside out. She exploited doubts and grey areas to tie our investigation in knots.

LINDSAY

Oh, you did that all by yourself. First DC Fleming's failed undercover operation and then yours.

KATE

I didn't do too badly. You ended up in prison.

STEVE

We didn't fail. We got you convicted. But you know sexual misconduct by undercover officers is a hot topic so you invented this story about us going to bed together so the jury sees you as a wronged woman. They obviously felt I must've shagged you into conspiring to murder a protected witness.

HASTINGS

(Less calming, more admonishing.)
Steven.

LINDSAY

(Doesn't bat an eye.)

Thank you, DS Arnott. I couldn't agree more, that the question of your sexual integrity quite rightly made the jury sceptical.

Lindsay reaches into her jacket and lays a phone on the table.

Everyone immediately gets very tense.

LINDSAY (CONT'D)

But I've got a recording that will be of interest to you all.

Hasting's leans in.

HASTINGS

All right then. This just isn't the time or the place.

LINDSAY

Now is exactly the time and exactly the place. Not in court, in a room full of rubberneckers and reporters, my pathetic private life laid out for everyone to laugh at, to pity. I couldn't bear that. But to show you all what kind of officer got me locked up for 585 miserable days, of that -- that I can live with.

(To Steve)

I've had my whole life put on trial and now it's your turn.

The others are spectators, not knowing what's going on between Lindsay and Steve but being forced to watch.

STEVE

You've been charged and tried but the one person that refuses to examine what you're accused of is you.

LINDSAY

I'm innocent. The question is, Are you? This phone was next to the bed the entire time. Although I can believe that you were too preoccupied to notice. Would you like me to play it for everyone? (Off Steve's defiant silence.)
DS Arnott?

STEVE

(Beats)

No.

KATE

Christ sake, Steve.

Exit Kate, thoroughly disappointed in him. Steve looks ashamed.

Lindsay takes back her phone.

LINDSAY

(To Gill)

Well. I feel this meeting's been remarkably successful, and I'd be very happy to record in writing that it's been a healing process for all parties. I'd also prefer it if you consider closed the matter of DS Arnott's sexual impropriety -
- I don't intend to make a statement of evidence.

Lindsay gets up to go. Embarrassed, Gill follows her. But then Lindsay pauses at the door.

LINDSAY (CONT'D)

The people that actually did the crime that I was imprisoned for -- they're still out there.

(To Hastings.)

Superintendent, you uphold the integrity of the police service. If you held one iota of doubt about my conviction, no officer would be more troubled by that than you; no officer would do more to right that wrong.

Lindsay has struck right at the heart of Hastings' integrity, and it plants a little doubt.

LINDSAY (CONT'D)

(To Steve)

I plan to move on with my life. You won't move on, Steve, until you stop chasing me, and you start chasing your real enemies.

Exit Lindsay, followed by Gill. Steve fumes, full of shame at having been played into a corner once again by Lindsay. Hastings gets up and prowls the room like a caged animal.

HASTINGS

For Christ sake, son. What was in that phone?

STEVE

We've got to take that crap from her, sir?

HASTINGS

You lied in court, you lied to your partner and you lied to me!

STEVE

I didn't lie to you, sir; I just don't think it's appropriate to discuss an officer's private life. I don't quiz you on yours.

HASTINGS

(Nerve touched)
What do you mean by that? I'm a married man.

STEVE

(Confused by his reaction)
I know, sir, I just...

HASTINGS

Anyway. It isn't "private" when it's bandied about in a court of law!

STEVE

What matters, sir, is whether I planted evidence. Are there any forensic anomalies in respect of the money found at Denton's address? No. It matches the other bribe money. Are the Exhibits Officer's records inaccurate or incomplete? No, they're not --

HASTINGS

That is not the issue!

STEVE

It's completely the issue. I did not plant evidence. If -- if I had sex with Lindsay Denton, which I didn't, does that stop her being guilty?

Hastings has had enough of Steve's defiance. He exits abruptly, leaving Steve to wallow in his situation.

CUT TO:

10:09:32 INT. AC-12. HASTINGS' OFFICE. MOMENTS LATER.

Gill is waiting for Hastings in his office.

GILL

Lindsay Denton has Left The Building.

Hastings shuts the door grimly.

GILL (CONT'D)
Steve Arnott should do the same.

Beat. Off Hastings' silence.

GILL (CONT'D)
Discreditable Conduct.

HASTINGS
Steve Arnott did not plant evidence.

GILL
But it's okay to have a relationship with a suspect?

Hastings has no comeback, finds the whole matter distasteful in the extreme.

GILL (CONT'D)
I can see how you feel about this,
Ted. Why defend the indefensible?

HASTINGS
Look. He can be an irritating wee gobshite when he wants to be, I'll give you that.

GILL
I'll tell you why. Because you personally recruited him from Counter-Terrorism, and that means you having to admit your misjudgement. Sorry, Ted, I intend to return to this conversation.

Exit Gill. Hastings appears somewhat exposed.

CUT TO:

10:10:17 INT. AC-12. LOBBY. CONTINUOUS.

Steve catches up with Kate.

STEVE
Kate.

Kate turns and heads for the exit.

STEVE (CONT'D)
Kate, wait. Please.

As Kate reaches the exit she slows. She gives him a hearing.

STEVE (CONT'D)

One time you told me Lindsay Denton had dirt on you. Remember what I said?

KATE

Maybe there is some people who always tell the truth. The rest of us choose our moments.

STEVE

And that's what I had to do. To ensure the evidence was put in front of the jury that would convict Lindsay Denton of a crime we all know she committed.

KATE

We don't "know". The only person who really knows is Lindsay herself. We gather the evidence. And the people decide. And they've decided she didn't do it. Because you couldn't keep it in your pants.

STEVE

That's not what happened.

KATE

What happened?

STEVE

It was an undercover operation in which I nurtured the trust of the target.

KATE

That is straight out of the manual, and total bollocks. You shagged her because you wanted to.

STEVE

I didn't shag her.

KATE

You know what, Steve; this is all just a bit too late. You should have told me the truth. You should have given me the chance to work with you on this. That's what partners do.

10:11:11 EXT. APPROVED PREMISES. STREET. THAT NIGHT

C/U B&B sign above door. Lindsay makes her with her bags towards the shabby looking B&B.

From across the street we see Dot step out of the shadows and he watches Lindsay from behind a bus shelter.

As Lindsay walks up the path Dot makes a call on his mobile.

CUT TO:

10:11:36 INT. APPROVED PREMISES. ENTRANCE. THAT NIGHT.

Lindsay enters the grubby lobby of a low-cost B&B, an Approved Premises, formerly referred to as a bail hostel.

Behind a desk, a scruffy middle-aged bloke is on an online gambling site on his laptop. Lindsay offers him a document headed "Offender Management Team -- Residence Order". The man gives the document a cursory glance, then confirms a bet on the web site, then reaches behind for a room key.

The whole time Lindsay looks anxious and ashamed.

He hands Lindsay the key and then continues on the gambling web site.

CUT TO:

10:11:48 INT. APPROVED PREMISES. LANDING. CONTINUOUS.

Lindsay makes her way along a grubby landing of bedroom doors.

One door opens briefly as someone leaves and through the momentary crack in the door Lindsay glimpses a middle-aged addict struggling to find a vein on her arm using the tourniquet-in-teeth technique.

Lindsay presses on to the room that corresponds to her key. She unlocks the door and goes in and can't shut the door behind her quickly enough.

CUT TO:

10:12:04 EXT./INT. AC-12. LOBBY/VANTAGE POINT. LATER THAT DAY.

Outside the revolving doors, two AFOs bearing G36 carbines take up holding positions. One of these is AFO X (male, 30s) who exchanges a nod of recognition with Steve and Kate as they go on through the entrance.

Armed but guns not drawn, Steve and Kate escort Hari through the lobby. Hari wears prison clothing.

From a vantage point, Dot watches him arrive, with deep unease.

STEVE (V.O)
For the tape image 313 is a photograph...

Dot and Kate watch the interview via a live CCTV feed.

HASTINGS (CONT'D)

HARI

I didn't murder Rod and I absolutely didn't attempt to murder DI Cottan. In fact DI Cottan set me up.

HASTINGS

(Sceptical)
He "set you up"?

Insert Kate reacts. Dot puts on an affronted expression for Kate's benefit.

HARI

Yeah. Cottan smashed himself in the face to make it look like I hit him. But I didn't. As far as the rope goes, he must have planted it there beforehand.

CUT TO:

10:12:57 INT. AC-12. MEETING ROOM. CONTINUOUS.

CUT TO:

HASTINGS (CONT'D)

Huh?

HARI

To frame me for Rod's murder.

HASTINGS

Do you have anything to support these claims against DI Cottan? I mean anything at all?

But Dot looks very worried.

Hari has nothing to offer, to his own consternation. He shakes his head in anguish.

HASTINGS (CONT'D)

Still outraged, Hastings is eager to move on.

STEVE
For the tape, Image 291, item reference MR-3, and Image 292, item reference MR-4.

While everyone looks in their folders, Steve brings up a couple of evidence photos of mobile phones found at Hari's house.

STEVE (CONT'D)
MR-3 and 4 are mobile phones. A Section-18 search of your property recovered a pair of unregistered pay-as-you-go phones concealed in the garage.

From the other room Dot watches intently, getting a little edgy. They move to the next document while Steve brings up a scan on screen of Hari's phone record, with significant calls highlighted.

STEVE (CONT'D)
Document 16. Analysis of activity on these phones reveals they made and received calls within the telecommunications cell that covers your home address. Three nights before the murder of Danny Waldron, a call was received by one of these phones.

HASTINGS

Who called you?

Hari's Solicitor whispers in his ear, "Say No Comment."

HARI

No comment.

STEVE

Document 16 again. The night before Danny Waldron's murder. Another call.

HASTINGS

Who called you that night?

Hari looks at his solicitor then shakes his head.

STEVE

Calls of a suspicious nature were made shortly before you volunteered to continue serving on Danny Waldron's squad and before you murdered them. Who made those calls and what did they ask you to do?

Hari agonises.

CUT TO:

10:14:16 INT. AC-12. MEETING ROOM. CONTINUOUS.

HASTINGS (O.S)

STEVE (O.S)

CUT TO:

10:14:24 INT. AC-12. INTERVIEW ROOM. CONTINUOUS.

STEVE

Unregistered pay-as-you-go phones, used for a short period then discarded -- is one we all recognise from organised crime.

HASTINGS

Who's got you in their pocket?

HARI

Nobody.

HASTINGS

Hari, we have you receiving phone calls linked to Danny's murder, we have you lobbying to stay on Danny's squad, we have your hands all over the firearm, we have you consistently lying about Danny's activities, we have a witness who says it was you who did all this, and not PC Rod Kennedy, we have you at the murder scene and we have you in possession of the instruments of Kennedy's death. Now. That's about the height of it, and it's a great big pile of evidence that is going to crush you flat. Now come on.

Hari cracks, realising how bad it all looks.

HASTINGS (CONT'D)

You killed Danny Waldron. Yes or no?

HARI

(Beats)
Yes. Yes.

Hari hangs his head in shame and anguish.

HASTINGS

Good. Now we're getting somewhere.

Cottan looks relieved.

Hari appears on the brink of telling all.

STEVE

We know you can't have been acting alone. Help us to help you. Who gave the order to kill Danny Waldron? Who was it?

Hari looks overwhelmed, ready to talk.

That doesn't help Dot one bit.

HARI (O.S)
He never gave me a name.

CUT TO:

10:15:51 INT. AC-12. INTERVIEW ROOM. CONTINUOUS.

Hari is on the ropes.

STEVE
Who didn't?

HARI
The bloke I always spoke to. He sounded like he was a Londoner, southeast, or summat (something).
It was all done over the phone, weren't it? I never met anyone like.

Kate is eager for Hari to crack. Dot is bricking it.

STEVE
You've got to know more. Times, places, other contacts. Look.
Someone's behind all this, pulling the strings, and I want to know who it is.

Hari wavers, on the verge of speaking. Steve calls up an image on a computer screen -- Ronan Murphy.

STEVE (CONT'D)
Ronan Murphy, the suspect killed by Danny Waldron. What do you know about him?

HARI
Nothing.

STEVE
They had history, Danny and him.

HARI
(Stunned)
That's news to me.

STEVE

Danny shot Murphy and was going after Murphy's associates. They were the ones that wanted Danny dead. The job you did for them.

HARI

I don't know Murphy. I don't know his associates. I don't know why they wanted Danny dead.

STEVE

Look. Who's behind this? What was Danny onto that meant you had to kill him?

But Hari just clams up, dare not say more, and shakes his head firmly. Steve's exasperated.

HASTINGS

Have you nothing further to say?

Hari shakes his head.

Dot breathes a sigh of relief.

Steve is frustrated.

Dot looks mightily relieved -- exit, with a wink to Kate.

HASTINGS (O.S.) (CONT'D)

You have offered nothing new in this interview to mitigate you being charged with the following offences. I therefore have the authority, from the Crown Prosecutor to charge you with one...

Steve enters his password and selects a file named Ronan Murphy UNREDACTED FILE. On the front is a prominent mugshot of Ronan.

He opens the file and views scanned pages from the file. The first few pages report that Ronan Murphy had a long history of violent crime and had a number of known criminal associates. Three principal associates are shown with cleared names and mugshots. Steve lingers over this section.

Steve opens the search box and types in the word "UNSOLVED" and strikes return. Murphy as a suspect in unsolved (highlighted) gangland murders and shows 4 interview dates November, December 2012 and January, February 2013 in connection with unsolved gangland murders.

STEVE

I've been doing more work on the Ronan Murphy file. There's a small entry, blink and you'd miss it, that he was interviewed by a Murder Squad, in relation to unsolved gangland murders. But there's no details of the offences he was being linked to.

STEVE

How many times are we gonna go over this? Lindsay lied in court to con the jury. Maybe you're thinking, if he'd shag a suspect, who else is he going to shag.

He stumbles towards the development.

JOE (CONT'D)

Making all your money are you, eh?

He picks up a brick and lobs that too. Smashes a window.

JOE (CONT'D)

You bunch of bleeding twats.

Crash. Window smashes. He lobs another brick.

JOE (CONT'D)

Shithouse. You bunch of bastards.

A police car approaches on a blue light. Joe Great.

Still bitter, Joe faces Steve and Kate.

JOE

They should rip it down, and smash every brick of it.

KATE

Joe, we've spoken to the officer handling your case. No one's going to press charges.

JOE

Those bastards, they're going to get away with what they done to us...

STEVE

You know I'm gutted Dale Roach is unfit to face prosecution...

KATE

But, listen, Joe... we're looking into the complaints made by you, or Danny or any of the other lads to the Police about the abuse you were made to suffer. By staff and visitors.

JOE

Any police that came, they just talked to the staff, I mean, they was the bastards who were organising it in the first place.
And anyone that talked about it and that, they just got it ten times worse.

Joe hangs his head and weeps, haunted and traumatised. Steve and Kate are sympathetic.

STEVE

We're doing everything we can but we still need your help, Joe.

STEVE (CONT'D)

We're particularly interested in this man. You identified him as a football coach. His name's Ronan Murphy. Did you or anyone you know ever make a complaint about him?

JOE

Yeah, there was one time. A social worker. He did nothing. Nothing was done.

KATE

What social worker?

JOE

Just some posh twat. Posh to us, anyway.

KATE

We need a name, Joe.

CUT TO:

10:20:54 INT. AC-12. HASTINGS' OFFICE. A FEW DAYS LATER.

Steve and Kate brief Hastings and Dot. Kate shows a photo of a hippy-ish looking young man.

KATE

Oliver Stephens-Lloyd, a registered social worker with responsibility at Sands View. He was a council employee around the time that Danny Waldron and Joe Nash were residents. Only record found so far is of a disciplinary hearing accusing Stephens-Lloyd of dealing cannabis to the residents. Stephens-Lloyd denied the charges and insisted he was being victimised because he'd tried to raise concerns about abuse at Sands View.

STEVE

All other records have been lost -- variously reported destroyed in a fire or lost in an office move. The tribunal report's existence is probably an oversight by whoever's been destroying records.

Cheers, Kate.

Steve moves quickly to Maneet's desk.

Maneet, the evidence recovered from Danny Waldron's flat.

MANEET
Yeah?

STEVE
The empty envelope.

While Maneet calls up the data on her computer (the forensic analysis of all the items examined), Steve continues.

STEVE (CONT'D)
Ronan Murphy was shot dead in the heat of the moment. But Linus, Danny had time with him ... time to get information...

MANEET
Let's see...

Maneet searches the forensics report. Dot watches Steve's every move like a hawk.

MANEET (CONT'D)
They never tested the envelope.

(Shocked)
What? Bloody Forensics.

MANEET
They're on a tight budget this financial year.

STEVE
I don't care about their budget.
Get it tested now.

Maneet nods tensely.

STEVE (CONT'D)
Thanks, Maneet.

Dot approaches Maneet.

Dot gives her the insistent look of a senior,

CUT TO:

STEVE (CONT'D)
This is the original report dated
21st of November 1998. Oliver Stephens-Lloyd was last seen a few weeks beforehand. His body was found on the 14th by a fisherman.
Statement's in the file.

Sam and a DC approach along the jetty

KATE
What's going on?

STEVE
I've asked Murder Squad if they'll reopen the case.

KATE
(Slightly put out)
Right.

SAM
Hi-ya.

STEVE
All right.

KATE
You all right.

SAM
We just re-interviewed the fisherman who found the body; he recalls that pretty much the first thing he was told at the scene was that it had to be a suicide.

Steve and Kate are immediately perturbed.

SAM (CONT'D)

Also it appears no photos or videos were taken of the scene.

STEVE

Was there a missing persons report or investigation at the time?

SAM

There was.

Again Steve and Kate looked perturbed. Sam passes them copies of the missing persons report.

SAM (CONT'D)

The report's cursory to say the least. It doesn't look as if anyone was actively searching for Stephens-Lloyd. The SIO at the time was DI Marcus Thurwell. He's no longer serving, but we're doing our best to track him down.

Kate makes a note of Thurwell's name. Meanwhile Steve scans to the end. He sees the distribution list at the end of senior officers copied in on the report which includes the line:

CC: Ch. Supt. P.R. Fairbank
Sam passes them a copy of the original post-mortem report.

SAM (CONT'D)

The pathologist's autopsy report at the time stated the body had superficial wounds and a broken arm, which he put down to the body being struck by a boat. So my boss has agreed to reopen the case. We're already seeking permission to exhume the body. Thanks, we'll be taking this from here.

Sam moves to exit with her DC.

STEVE

We've got an on-going interest...

SAM

It's ours now but we'll keep you in the loop as best we can.

Exit Sam and her DC sharply.

Steve looks embarrassed in front of Kate, that his personal tensions with Sam have affected their work.

KATE

(Sarcastic.)

Seems like you're in everybody's good books.

Exit Kate, leaving Steve to look low and embarrassed.

Lindsay approaches the booth. In the booth next door an angry man is arguing with the officer.

Lindsay trudges into the booth. Behind a desk sits an Offender Management Officer, Tammy Blakefield.

TAMMY

Lindsay?

LINDSAY

Yes.

TAMMY (CONT'D)

It says here that you were acquitted of Conspiracy to Murder, you found guilty of Perverting the Course of Justice.

LINDSAY

Yes. I'm appealing against the conviction. I'm going to clear my name.

TAMMY

You won't be able to re-join the Police with a criminal conviction.

LINDSAY

I told you, I'm appealing. Have you actually checked to see that I can re-join?

TAMMY

No, I haven't "checked".

LINDSAY

Well then I would like to apply to re-join the Police Service.

Lindsay fixes Tammy with a determined look.

Tammy returns a look that is pitying and irritated. Lindsay reacts.

LINDSAY (CONT'D)

I'm sorry. Why are you looking at me like that?

TAMMY

Lindsay, I don't know you, I've got nothing against you, but I can't help you if you're going to be in denial. You're an Offender, which means there's no chance you'll be able to re-join the Police.

LINDSAY
Yet I'm not a criminal!

Lindsay looks miserable and bitter. Tammy changes the subject.

TAMMY
Let's look on the bright side and try getting you into work. Everything follows from that.

LINDSAY
Okay. Well I was a Detective Inspector. I've got a valuable skill-set.

There were notable findings on the inside the envelope recovered from Danny Waldron's flat.

She calls up evidence images of the envelope found at Danny Waldron's flat, and then the forensic images of stains found on the inside; all the time she talks in a low whisper.

MANEET (CONT'D)
They found a number of tiny stains, less than a millimetre across. Ink. Standard biro could have belonged to anyone.
(Nervous beat)
And blood.

DOT
And that'd be Danny's, right?

MANEET

No, sir. It matched to Linus Murphy's.

(Knows that's significant)

The final report states that these findings are consistent with a blood stained note written during or shortly after Danny Waldron's torture-murder of Linus Murphy.

Dot takes all this in with growing unease.

MANEET (CONT'D)

Should I send a copy to DS Arnott,

LINDSAY

I don't expect you to care, Steve, but I'll never ever gonna get back to being the person I was before all this happened. You know. The only thing that kept me sane, the thing that got me up in the morning, was being a police officer. I want to find the people that framed me, Steve. And I believe -- I hope - that you do too.

Steve hesitates, despite himself, but then keeps going.

The audio file in this phone is as embarrassing to you as it is to me. Believe you me I've got it backed up.

(Off his resentment)

I don't enjoy threatening people. They make me.

Under pressure and with great resentment, Steve gives in.

STEVE

Ronan Murphy was killed by a police officer. Murphy was a prime suspect in the murder of Tommy Hunter but for some reason that's been hidden from AC-12.

LINDSAY

Well bring in the officer that killed him.

STEVE

He was killed a couple of weeks after.

Steve, Kate and Dot in Hasting's office.

STEVE

Ronan Murphy was interviewed by the team investigating, Tommy Hunter's murder.

HASTINGS

And where did you get that from?

STEVE

I'm not at liberty to say, sir.

KATE

Here we go again.

STEVE

Tommy Hunter was involved in grooming underage girls and pimping them out. And he was about to turn informer. The people who ordered his murder didn't want what he knew about child sexual exploitation to come out. That's exactly the same motive as the murder of Danny Waldron. They're connected.

Hastings absorbs this. Dot looks uneasy.

KATE

Sir, we know Hunter's murder was orchestrated by the Caddy, and there's ample evidence that someone was pulling Hari Bains's strings.

STEVE

Using the exact same methods as the Caddy. Voice contact only, multiple phones.

HASTINGS

Yes, but, how can this be the Caddy. DC Cole is dead.

Dot coolly seizes the initiative.

DOT

Well the Caddy is my inquiry, sir.
So maybe I should be the one to look into this.

HASTINGS

I'd be grateful.

DOT

Sir.

HASTINGS

What? Something to say? Or are you

Hastings shows them the door.

Steve, Kate and Dot troop out of Hastings'

KATE

STEVE

KATE

DOT

MORTON

DOT

So what'll happen when they find out about all that evidence you've been sitting on? The contacts in that phone, the call history -- all in my past, mind - that isn't summat (something) anyone could shut down.

Morton shifts uneasily. Dot fixes his gaze on Morton.

DOT (CONT'D)

Now you're, what, six months off retiring?

MORTON

Dot looks genuinely emotional -- it takes Morton by surprise.

10:40:32 INT. AC-12. INTERVIEW ROOM. MOMENTS LATER.

Morton and his Solicitor face Dot and Kate. They wait for the tape monotone to finish. Morton never looks at Kate, always looking at Cottan or his Solicitor.

DOT

...is to re-examine a statement provided voluntarily by DC Morton on October 17th 2013. This is document 1 in your folders.

They look at the document and a scan of it appears on a monitor screen. It's Morton's statement about Cole, handwritten, with Dot as the interviewing officer.

DOT (CONT'D)

Is this your statement?

MORTON

It is.

DOT

And do you now wish to amend your statement in any way?

MORTON

I do.

Morton has a very quick whispered conversation with his Solicitor (a line or two about just going ahead with what they planned beforehand).

MORTON (CONT'D)

DC Jeremy Cole was a corrupt officer, the sort there's no place for in the police service. What he got up to sickened me. I did have occasion to meet Cole and he did at one time boast about his connections to underworld figures.

KATE

Did you report Cole?

MORTON

(To Dot)
Although this is a voluntary interview, I request the professional courtesy of being questioned by an officer at least one rank superior.

Kate chews her lip, visibly hates Morton's guts.

DOT

Why didn't you report Cole at the time?

MORTON

I thought he was a lippy kid, he was full of it, I didn't believe his boasts. Much later I learned about his offences. If only I'd acted I might have prevented them. I'm extremely remorseful.

DOT

In regards to your statement of Cole being the Caddy, would you now like to make any further amendments?

MORTON

I never heard Cole himself use that nickname. I got it from another source and I passed it on. I should have made that clear in my original statement. I'm extremely remorseful.

DOT

Who was the other source?

MORTON

An old friend from my days on Armed Robbery, Terry Capistrano.

Kate makes a note of the name.

DOT

And do you have any further information?

MORTON

No, sir, only that I'm extremely remorseful.

DOT

Well. Thank you, DC Morton. No further questions. Interview terminated.

Dot reaches past Kate to stop the tape, which she's a little taken aback by (him stopping the interview so early).

Morton exits with his solicitor. Steve is watching this from his desk.

KATE

(Of Morton.)

Wanker.

Kate sighs and takes the tape out of the machine.

Steve watches Morton exit with his solicitor.

KATE (CONT'D)

Right. Well I'll check out this name he gave us.

DOT

I wouldn't bother if I were you.

(Off her look)

Terry Capistrano got Alzheimer's. He was retired, sick. The poor bugger lost his marbles.

KATE

Convenient.

DOT

Come off it, Kate. Look Nige was just trying to help.

KATE

Can we be sure?

DOT

Look. I know he's a mate and everything, but he's a few months off retirement. And between me and you, his missus hasn't been too well lately.

KATE

I really don't give a shit.

She takes the tape and goes to exit.

DOT

Look, his heart's in the right place.

(Gentler)

Let's just leave this cock-up behind us eh? Please.

KATE

Yes. Well I suppose I can overlook it...

DOT

Thanks, I really appreciate it.

KATE

As now we know the Caddy's active again. But this time we get the bastard.

Dot looks momentarily uneasy, but then gives in with a nod.

DOT

Yes.

ROBIN (V.O)

Lindsay?

There's a knock on the door.

CUT TO:

10:43:19 INT. APPROVED PREMISES. LINDSAY'S ROOM. THAT NIGHT.

Lindsay opens the door. Robin steps inside.

ROBIN

Thank you. I'm sorry for disturbing you.

She's made a point of leaving the door open and he makes a point of closing it gently.

LINDSAY

What's this about?

ROBIN

I'm afraid I've heard that you've been absent from work. I'm concerned that you're not coping. And if you were to get into trouble again, you'd return to prison.

LINDSAY

I'm never going back to prison.

He makes sympathetic noises and goes and sits on the end of the bed.

ROBIN

But you can't afford to lose that job.

LINDSAY

(Beats)

What did you expect for ten quid?

ROBIN

I was trying to help you.

She stares at him. He stares at her. He's completely poker faced. Tense beats, building.

LINDSAY

Twenty.

A couple of beats, then he nods. He takes a twenty pound note out of his pocket, shows it to her and then puts it in his jacket top pocket. He undoes his belt and unzips his fly.

She goes down on her knees. He closes his eyes and his upper body moves in keeping with her OOV actions (loosening his trousers, pulling them down, then his underpants). He starts to sigh in anticipation of pleasure but then -- -- he screams.

Again this action is OOV but Lindsay's fist grips his balls and she yanks hard in various directions, each one causing him excruciating pain. He throws a punch at her which she blocks and she pulls even harder so he squeals like a pig.

She pulls him towards the camera-phone, pointing it out to him.

LINDSAY (CONT'D)

Don't you try making up any lies about this! Because it's all on video!

ROBIN

You can't do that! It's illegal!

LINDSAY

You're saying that I can't record you without your prior knowledge as a breach of Article 8 of the Human Rights Act? I'll take your Human Rights Act and I'll raise you Section 4 of the Protection from Harassment Act 1997 and your offence under that act carries a maximum prison sentence of five years!

She drops to the floor, her face right over his.

LINDSAY (CONT'D)

I'll see you in court.

Lindsay gives his balls one final agonising wrench and then she throws him off and he collapses onto the floor. She kicks him.

She throws open the door and he crawls out in agony. One more kick and she slams the door and locks it, goes to the phone and looks straight in the lens:

Lindsay's face shows icy-cold determination to get back what she's lost.

STEVE

(To nearby staffer)

Where's Maneet?

DOT

(Chipping in)

Off sick, I heard.

STEVE

There's some forensics I asked her to chase up.

DOT

You'll just have to wait.

Steve looks frustrated. Dot quickly gives him something else to think about.

DOT (CONT'D)

Kate's got a post-mortem report for you, if you're interested.

Steve is interested. Reluctantly, he drops the matter of the forensics, and heads over to Kate's desk. Dot is happy with the resolution.

STEVE

Thanks.

Kate's with a colleague.

KATE

Yes. If you can just get a couple of...

Steve interrupts.

STEVE

You've got a new PM on Oliver Stephens-Lloyd?

KATE

(Cold, flat)
Yeah.

STEVE

Were you going to get round to telling me?

KATE

(Cold, flat)
Yeah.

Steve keeps his cool, takes his medicine. Kate passes him the document with just enough slowness to keep signalling their relationship isn't in a good state at the moment.

KATE (CONT'D)

The new autopsy found significant differences from the original. Both arms were broken and there was a severe skull fracture. The fracture wasn't consistent with a flat surface like the hull of a boat. It looked more like a hammer blow.

Steve absorbs this.

STEVE

Right.

KATE

Look at the original PM, the distribution list at the end.

Steve looks at the distribution list which once again includes:

CC: Ch. Supt. P.R. Fairbank

STEVE

(Shrugs) Routine distribution to senior officers at the time.

Kate points at the document.

KATE

Routine except for one name. Chief Superintendent Fairbank had nothing to do with this case. He ran Vice. Also copied in on the Missing Persons report.

Steve takes this in.

STEVE

What do we know about Chief Superintendent Fairbank?

KATE

This.

She brings up on screen a picture of the morbidly obese Dale Roach grinning like the Cheshire Cat next to a police officer in the uniform of a Chief Superintendent at a charity event.

KATE (CONT'D)

Councillor Dale Roach with guess who?

Kate brings up another similar sort of image of the two men.

KATE (CONT'D)

Chief Superintendent Fairbank.

And another.

KATE (CONT'D)

Roach and Fairbank.

And another.

KATE (CONT'D)

Roach and Fairbank.

Steve and Kate stare at the images thoughtfully.

Dot is watching them.

CUT TO:

10:47:39 INT. AC-12. HASTINGS' OFFICE. LATER THAT DAY.

From a folder Kate lays scans of the photos of Roach and Fairbank on Hastings' desk, followed by the reports cc-ed to Fairbank. Hastings studies them.

KATE
Chief Superintendent Fairbank

HASTINGS
(Knows him)
Oh yeah, Pat run Vice for donkeys' years.

KATE
If Oliver Stephens-Lloyd did submit a list of abusers at Sands View, almost certainly it would've gone to Vice.

HASTINGS
(A little uneasy.)
Almost certainly.

STEVE
Which makes the fact he was copied in on Stephens-Lloyd's missing persons and post-mortem reports all the more suspicious.

Hastings hesitates, studying the names copied in the report.

STEVE (CONT'D)
Sir, former Chief Superintendent
Fairbank still lives in the area...

Hastings takes Steve's point. He makes a show of casting aside his uneasiness.

HASTINGS
Let's see what he's got to say for himself. Good work, you two, good work.

STEVE Sir.

KATE
Sir.

Exit Steve and Kate. Hastings looks at the reports with mounting unease.

FAIRBANK

Anything I can do to help. I'm retired now. There's no need for the sir. Follow me.

And they walk through the ornate wood panelled hallway to the lounge.

FAIRBANK (CONT'D)

Take a seat.

Fairbank appears relaxed and amiable as he takes a seat. Steve and Kate do the same.

I'm DS...

FAIRBANK

Tea or coffee?

STEVE

We're fine, thank you, sir. As I was saying. I'm DS Arnott.

KATE

DC Fleming.

Steve and Kate get their pocket books out and take notes where appropriate.

KATE (CONT'D)

Mr Fairbank, we'd like to begin by asking you about a social worker who went missing in October 98.
Oliver Stephens-Lloyd.

FAIRBANK

(Shakes head)
Doesn't ring a bell.

STEVE

If we may, sir perhaps this report might jog your memory?

Kate passes Fairbank a copy of the Missing
Persons report.

Fairbank makes a meal of opening a glasses case.

FAIRBANK

(Of glasses)
Blind as a bat without these.

Cleans the lenses.

FAIRBANK (CONT'D)

Are you sure you don't want a tea or coffee?

KATE

We're fine, thank you, sir.

He puts the glasses on.

Fairbank reads the report, utterly relaxed. Then he hands it back.

FAIRBANK

(Professing ignorance)
Sorry.

STEVE

The report was copied to you. Is there any reason you might take an interest?

FAIRBANK

None at all.

KATE

Can you explain why you've been sent this report?

FAIRBANK

Well I don't remember any of this.
I mean. You're going back a good many years.

Kate opens a folder and shows Fairbank the photos of him with Dale Roach.

KATE

We'd like to show you some newspaper clippings, if we may.

Clock chimes. Once again Fairbank makes a palaver out of putting on his reading glasses.

STEVE

You appear to be quite close to Councillor Dale Roach.

FAIRBANK

Our paths crossed occasionally.
Usually at a charity event. We weren't close.

STEVE

We're looking into allegations of child sexual exploitation involving Councillor Roach.

Fairbank just looks at them both amiably, almost stupidly.

KATE

As head of Vice, did you ever deal with any complaints against Roach?

FAIRBANK

There may have been some such saying "Councillor Roach has done this" or "Councillor Roach did that."

STEVE

And what would it be that the Councillor "did"?

FAIRBANK

I don't recall the details. But when these things came up, they would have been looked into.

STEVE

Did you ever deal with complaints of abuse at Sands View Boys' Home?

FAIRBANK

That doesn't ring a bell.

KATE

(Notebook out)
There was a specific allegation made by the social worker we're talking about, Oliver Stephens-Lloyd.

FAIRBANK

(Professing ignorance)
Sorry.

STEVE

Stephens-Lloyd claimed he compiled a list of authority figures who,
with the collusion of staff, conducted systematic abuse of boys resident at Sands View.

FAIRBANK

See. I've never even heard of this Stands Views place.

Tense beats while Steve and Kate look sceptical, but Fairbank seems not to have a care in the world.

The doorbell rings.

FAIRBANK (CONT'D)

(Exiting.)
Sorry.

Steve and Kate look frustrated.

FAIRBANK (O.S.) (CONT'D)

I'll get that, love.

MRS FAIRBANK (O.S)

Okay.

FAIRBANK

Here he is.

I hope I'm not too late.

surprised to see who's outside.

Steve has witnessed the handshake, and looks extremely troubled.

FAIRBANK

I hope you don't mind me calling

HASTINGS

Not at all, sir. A matter of professional courtesy.

Kate reacts with shock at hearing Hastings' voice. She sees Steve is in the same boat. Enter Fairbank and Hastings. Kate stands.

HASTINGS (CONT'D)

As you were, as you were.

FAIRBANK

Oh now you'll stay after won't you? Joyce will kill me if I let you off the hook from her Victoria sponge.

Steve looks towards the interview room. The blinds are down so he can't see who's in there.

He moves to Kate's desk. She keeps her focus on her computer.

STEVE Where's Hastings?

KATE
Briefing. Inspectors and above only.

Steve knows he must act.

STEVE
Kate.

Steve moves to a quiet area. Kate hesitates but then decides she'll join him.

STEVE (CONT'D)
What the hell was going on, with Hastings showing up at Fairbank's house?

KATE
You heard Fairbank. He called him, put the gaffer on the spot.

STEVE
Yeah, well I saw the handshake at the door. It was Masonic.

Kate is surprised and troubled.

STEVE (CONT'D)

His ability to manage communications without ever betraying his own identity implies a highly trained, highly sophisticated approach to covert operations that is associated with Counter-Terrorism.

(Next slide.)

And lastly, Bains described the Caddy's voice as having a London or southeast accent.

Dot brings up the last slide which contains all the bullet points in the profile:

Dot strikes the final blow with calm professionalism.
